INIA HOWARD AS PAULINE IN THE LADY OF LYONS-LONDON ASSURANCE AND THE SOLDIER'S RETURN.—The favorable impresion made by Miss Vlrginla Howard as Parthenla, was much Increased by her eautiful rendition of Pauline lu the Lady of Lyous. Her style of acting is of the est school, marred by no painful striving for effect-quiet, finlshed, truthful, and orrect. We have seen no actress for many ears past, who, in the old standard plays as given each general satisfaction as this ew applicant for popular favor. To-night she appears in a character totally dissimilar o the two above mentloned-that of Lady iny Spanker, lu that best of Boureleanlt's omedies, London Assurance. She will ook the character admirably, and no loubt give us an execlient embodiment of the life and spirit of the author's creation The afterpired is a presty little ballet, in of Rosetta. The Inauguration Ball. Our dispatches have already given a des iption of the general features of the Iuuration ball, but we find in our exanges a few facis that will be interesting, pecially to our lady readers. The New York Times' report says:

Mrs. Lincoln appeard remarkably well; she wore a very tasteful and becoming head-dress, and a low neeked lavender ella (I think) of exquisite shade, perfect fit, and evident richness. Her lace was point, her jewelry was the simple diamond, and her attire such as commended fisell to the good taste, the sense of propriety and the love of the beantiful of every person in the room.

of the ladles who were with her, Miss Edwards of Springfield, was the most noticeable. She dressed with great elegance and equal simplicity—what the name of the material is, I do not pretend to say or know. It was very thin, ganzy and white, looked as II it would hurn very easily, and had a long row of beautiful bouquels down the front of it. That's not a very technical description of a lady's ball-dress, but it may answer every purpose just as ni it may answer every purpose just as

Mrs. Baker, sister-in-law of Mrs. Lincoln Mrs. Baker, sister-in-law of Mrs. Lincoln, was also dressed very elegantly. She were a white silk, in which were embroidered flowers of exquisite color. She were a head-frees to match, and looked well.

Southern Rights Meeting in Ander-son County. son County.

At a meeting of the citizens of Anderson county, held without distinction of party, on County Court day, Morch 11th, in the town of Lawrenceburg, Kentneky, L. W. Chambers, Sr., was called to the chair, and 1. W. Mathews and A. P. Randoll were appointed Secretaries. The meeting was a very large and enthusiastic one. Capt. Phil. B. Thompson addressed the meeting upon the side of Southern Rights. And the principles of equal rights to all, so ably and boldly advocated by him, were received by this large concernse of people with scarcely a dissenting voice. C. N. Kavanaugh, Esq., presented the following preamble and resolutions, which were unanimously adopted by the meeting:

Resolved, That the Louisville Courier, Frankfort Yeonan, Kentucky Statisman, and all papers triendly to the cause of Southern Rights, he requested to publish the proceedings of the incetting.

Whereupon the meeting adjourned.
